ITINERARY FOR FURANO JAPAN

Travel Day: Leave the US - Arrive in Sapporo the next day

Day 1: Sapporo: Getting to Hokkaido will involve a transfer from either Narita or Haneda airports in the greater Tokyo area. This implies a late arrival into Hokkaido (after 6:00 pm). We will pick you up at the Chitose airport in Sapporo and spend the first night in Sapporo. Hotel for the evening.

Day 2: Furano: We will get up and drive three hours to Furano. The town is known as the "Navel of Hokkaido" for its central location on the island and makes an excellent base for other ski resorts and the Daisetsuzan National Park. We will start the trip with a half day of lift-assisted access to the side country using the Furano Ski Resort Gondola. Hotel for the evening

Day 3: Tokachidake: The Ainu, the indigenous people of Hokkaido, refer to the mountains of Daisetsuzan as "Kamui Mintara," or the "Playground of the Gods." Hokkaido's premier backcountry skiing area provides excellent alpine and tree skiing. One option is to ski the active Volcano of Mt Tokachi and finish in an outdoor spring with superb ski line views. Hotel for the evening

Day 4: Asahidake: Asahidake is at 2,290m, the highest mountain in Hokkaido, and is also a live volcano. It's pretty awesome to ski by its conical-shaped crater with its multiple smoking fumaroles. On bright days you can see plumes of white smoke billowing from its many vents. We can either go to the summit or do laps on a cable car which lifts access to the tree line providing 600 meters of skiing through ancient forests of spruce that are 600 years old. Hotel for the evening

Day 5-6: Sandanyama and Maetokachi: Straight out from our ryokan, there is access to unlimited terrain surrounding the peaks of Sandanyama and Maetokachi. Depending on the group's preferences, we can hit steep chutes, birch forests, ridgelines, or bag a summit. Hotel for the evening

Day 7: Furano: Furano ski resort is one of the premier ski areas of Hokkaido and has steeper terrain than other areas of Hokkaido. Our last ski day will come full circle, and we can take an off-piste circuit out of the ski area boundaries, which provides 900 vertical meters of skiing each run. Easy access out of the resort and then egress makes for a big day of skiing. Hotel for the evening

Day 8 - Travel Day: Transfer Day, where we return to Sapporo to allow everybody time to start their journey home or continue onto other venues!

Note: This is a general itinerary; we will follow this approximate schedule. But due to the nature of international travel, please remember to be flexible. This trip aims to balance a unique cultural experience of Japan's Northern Island with providing the best possible skiing and mitigating natural hazards when possible. As a result, the guides will adjust the itinerary during the trip to give the best balance and experience possible for the group.
